

Looking for a Job That Moves You?

Come Join Us!

We're looking for individuals who like interacting with the youth, are interested in improving public safety, and providing court-involved youth the opportunity to become productive citizens using Positive Youth Development* principles.

If so, then you've come to the right place!

DYRS' mission is to improve public safety and provide court-involved youth the opportunity to become more productive citizens by building on the strengths of youth and their families in the least restrictive, most home-like environment consistent with public safety. Emphasis is placed on best practices for interacting with youth, via short-term basic programming for youth in temporary short-term detention; or a treatment-oriented milieu for youth in longer-term custody depending on the legal status of the youth, and based on the principles of Positive Youth Development.

*Positive Youth Development is a process which prepares young people to meet the challenges of adolescence and adulthood through a coordinated, progressive series of activities and experience which help them to become socially, morally, emotionally, physically, and cognitively competent. Positive youth development addresses the broader developmental needs of youth, in contrast to deficit-based models which focus solely on youth problems.
